PROPOSED BUSINESS IDENTITY / C3 ASSIGNMENT

Second Story Studio

Keep the story. Change the object.

A fictional creative reuse studio in Beirut that repairs and redesigns meaningful furniture and textiles into pieces people can use again.

Our mission

Help people keep the memories attached to their belongings while giving those belongings a useful next chapter. We aim to reduce avoidable waste through thoughtful repair and reuse.

Who we serve

Individuals and families with sentimental belongings, and small cafes or independent shops that want to refresh existing furniture rather than replace it.

Our services

| Service | What we offer |
|---|---|
| Furniture Revival | Refinishing, cosmetic repair, and creative redesign of small wooden furniture such as chairs, side tables, and shelves. Every project requires a team assessment. |
| Fabric-to-Keepsake | Transforming suitable clothing and household textiles into cushion covers, tote bags, or decorative patchwork panels. |
| Second Story Consultation | A 20-minute design consultation to discuss an object's condition, the features the customer wants to preserve, and possible transformations. Fee: USD 25, credited toward an approved project. |
| Repair & Reimagine Workshops | Two-hour beginner workshops on basic textile mending and creative reuse. Fee: USD 35 per person, including practice materials. Dates and seat availability are confirmed by the team. |

Our team

Maya Haddad - Founder and Furniture Designer. Leads furniture assessments, restoration design, and project quality checks.

Rami Nassar - Textile Designer. Develops keepsake designs, assesses fabric suitability, and leads the textile workshops.

Nour Salim - Customer Experience Coordinator. Handles inquiries, consultation requests, quotations, and customer feedback.

The business, team, services, prices, and operating details in this profile are invented for the assignment.

A second life, a familiar story.

Our unique value proposition

Second Story Studio starts with what a customer wants to keep: an original detail, a material, a memory, or the object's function. The team records this in a Preservation Brief and uses it to guide the redesign. Each completed project includes a Story Card describing the original object, the changes made, and any personal story the customer chooses to share. Personal stories are optional.

How a project works

1. Tell us about the object. Describe its material, condition, intended use, and the features you want preserved.

2. Request follow-up. Leave your name, email address, and project notes if you want the team to contact you. Photographs can be discussed during the team's follow-up; they are not required in the chatbot.

3. Review the proposal. The team assesses suitability and provides a design proposal, quotation, and estimated completion date. Work starts only after customer approval.

4. Receive the result. The finished piece comes with its Story Card. Customers can share feedback or suggest future services.

Operating details

| Topic | Published business fact |
|---|---|
| Location and hours | Beirut, Lebanon. Consultations and visits are by appointment, Tuesday through Saturday, 10:00-18:00 Beirut time. The exact studio address is provided by the team when a visit is confirmed. |
| Project pricing | Furniture Revival and Fabric-to-Keepsake projects are quoted individually after assessment. No fixed project prices are published. |
| Timing and availability | Completion times depend on condition, materials, design, and workload. No standard turnaround time or live workshop calendar is published. |
| Transport | Pickup and delivery may be discussed with the team. No delivery coverage, fees, or transport booking service are published. |
| Service boundaries | No electrical repairs, structural safety certification, or specialist conservation of valuable antiques. Suitability and repair feasibility must be assessed by the team. |

Customer information and follow-up

General questions do not require contact details. Interested customers may provide their name, email address, and project notes for follow-up. An inquiry records interest; it does not confirm a booking, project acceptance, or a purchase.

Feedback and unanswered questions

The studio welcomes comments on service, design preferences, and workshop ideas. Questions not answered by this profile are recorded for the team to review, rather than answered with invented details. Response-time guarantees, warranty terms, refund policies, and specialist technical advice are not specified.
